

As businesses are coming to grips with the uncertainty of the global public health crisis, developments continue to unfold rapidly from federal, state and local governments. Yesterday, Congress passed the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA) which provides additional sick leave (10 days) and FMLA leave for employees (more on this soon).

For small businesses already bracing for the financial implications of an economic downturn, our first consultation is free. Take action now to prevent greater hardships with creditors. Please contact our Workout and Bankruptcy Counsel Gal Lynn McCarthy or Max Moseley to schedule a call.

We want you to know how the KPPB LAW team is remaining steadfast to counsel your business --- and help you understand legal implications facing your business during this public health crisis. All digital communication lines with our offices are open, including phones, emails, faxes and videoconferencing. While our corporate office in Atlanta remains open with limited staff to receive deliveries, our attorneys in Atlanta, New York City, Houston, Northern Virginia, are now conducting client business through digital communications.

Be well. Stay well. And please contact us at 678-443-2244 with any questions.
